Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 5-7, 9-10, 12-13, 17-19 and 21-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thompson (U.S. Patent No. 6,393,410) in view of Fredell (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2001/0028364).

Referring to claim 1. Thompson discloses a method of providing project and product information to a purchaser of floor covering materials (at least Thompson: Fig. 17, "FINISHES") using an internet-based Web site system, the method comprising:

Art Unit: 3625

- Providing a Web site system that includes a Web site accessible through a computer based server that includes a link to a customer specific URL and that includes an accessible database containing data including a catalog of project data corresponding to floor covering installation projects for said purchaser of floor covering materials (at least Thompson: column 5, lines 1-14);
 - Identifying one or more users authorized to access the Web site of the Web site system on behalf of said purchaser of floor covering materials (at least Thompson: FIG. 5, "LOGON");
 - Assigning to said one or more users personalized registration information in said database (at least Thompson: FIG. 5, "CREATE ACCOUNT");
 - Establishing a category based listing of data elements accessible by each of said one or more users in said database (at least Thompson: FIG. 8);
 - In response to an entry of personalized registration information from a remote computing device by an individual user, linking said individual user to said customer specific URL by system software (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 3-16);
 - Receiving a request for project data from said individual user from the remote computing device (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 3-16);
 - Correlating the entered registration information to the listing of data elements accessible by said individual user by system software (at least Thompson: FIG. 9, "Customer Information");

- Retrieving a portion of the requested project data corresponding to the listing of data elements accessible by said individual user from said database (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 48-62); and
- Transmitting to said remote computing device of the individual user in electronic format said portion of the requested project data corresponding to the listing of data elements accessible by said individual user (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 40-42).

Thompson does not expressly disclose excluding data elements not accessible by an individual user. Fredell discloses a method of excluding data elements not accessible by an individual user (at least Fredell: paragraph 0042). At the time the invention was made it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to have modified the method of Thompson to have included the method of Fredell in order to allow people at different companies or other entities to have the benefits of private network security (at least Fredell: paragraph 0005).

The Examiner notes, the following wherein limitations do not relate back to or clarifies what is required by the claim, and is therefore given little patentable weight:

- Wherein said purchaser of floor covering materials is a corporate entity having a plurality of business locations,
- Wherein the catalog of project and product data includes data on any completed floor covering installation projects, and

- Wherein the customer specific URL further includes a link to an order page for said individual user to place an order with a manufacturer of said floor covering materials by a remote computing device.

Referring to claim 5. Thompson further discloses a method wherein in the establishing step, the category based listing of data elements accessible by each of said one or more users is arranged on the basis of geographic location of the floor covering installation projects (at least Thompson: FIG. 3, “210”).

Referring to claim 6. Thompson further discloses a method comprising updating project data during the progression of the floor covering installation projects by entry of additional information into a database specific to said purchaser of floor covering materials (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 31-38).

Referring to claim 7. Thompson further discloses a method wherein entry of additional information into the database specific to said purchaser of floor covering materials is carried out by means of a remote data entry system by a representative of a manufacturer of said floor covering material (at least Thompson: FIG. 1, “Suppliers 90”).

Referring to claim 9. Thompson further discloses a method wherein the customer specific URL further includes a link to means to request quotation for new floor covering installations (at least Thompson: FIG. 3, “270 and 280”).

Referring to claim 10. Thompson further discloses a method wherein the customer specific URL further includes a link to a contact page for said individual user to communicate information or messages to a manufacturer of said floor covering materials (at least Thompson: column 4, lines 27-30).

Referring to claim 12. Thompson in view of Fredell does not expressly disclose a method wherein the Web site system is provided by a manufacturer of floor covering materials. The Examiner notes, the specific provider of the Web site system is only found in the nonfunctional descriptive material and is not functionally involved in the steps recited. The method of providing project and product information to a purchaser of floor covering materials would be performed in the same manner regardless of the provider of the Web site system. Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

Referring to claims 13, 17-19 and 21-23. Claims 13, 17-19 and 21-23 are rejected under the same rationale as set forth above in claims 1, 5-7, 9-10 and 11.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 5/2/2005 with reference to the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection is persuasive.

Applicant's arguments with respect to all the rejected claims in reference to the 35 U.S.C. 103(a) rejection are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Bridges, JR, U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2002/0123942 A1, September 5, 2002, discloses a preview system for floor covering installations.
